

JCPA Dress Code

At Ja'Duke, we strive to provide students with a high quality arts education while creating a safe and fun community. If you've been with us for a while you've probably heard Kim's silly dress code alliteration, which roughly translates to not showing your chest, midriff or bottom. While silly, it is consistent with what we believe creates a safe and comfortable environment for children of all ages. Wearing form fitting clothing that follows the above rule enables children to focus on learning, rather than what they are wearing. Additionally, we want our students to have full mobility during class, and that can be hindered by clothes that might ride up or are extra baggy. When a student wears something that doesn't fit right or something they are self conscious in, it often constrains their movement from being full out and fabulous. We aren't too picky and we love that our students can express themselves through what they wear.

For Ja'Duke classes, students should wear form fitting clothing that is comfortable to move and sweat in. Whatever our students wear, we want them to feel confident and ready to dance.
